India losing race to filariasis?

Though fortified rice, wheat, iodised salt, milk and oil are set to become a major part of the national malnutrition control plan soon, it seems the Government has not warmed up to the idea of providing fortified salt with the diethylcarbamazine (DEC) programme in States plagued by Lymphatic Filariasis (LF), a profoundly painful and disfiguring disease. This despite various studies asserting that a combination of fortified salt with the anti-filarial drug, DEC, could offer an intervention that avoids many of the barriers connected with tablet-based elimination programmes. The intervention has been successfully tried in several countries including India — which has 40 per cent of the world's LF cases — and has been used operationally in China and Tanzania to eliminate the disease.

With just one year left to meet the 2021 target set by the Union Health Ministry for LF elimination, concerns are emerging regarding the feasibility of meeting the goal, using the current tablet-based Mass Drug Administration (MDA) strategy. At least 160 districts of the country are in the grip of LF, a neglected tropical disease that attacks the lymphatic system. It is caused by the transmission of filarial parasites that are transmitted to humans via mosquitoes. Currently, at least one million people in India are estimated to be infected by the disease and more than 23 million suffer from the disability associated with it, according to the Indian Council of Medical Research.

JAGUAR LAND ROVER'S 3D-PRINTED PAW ENSURES NEW CARS ARE TOP DOG

Ahmedabad: Whitley, UK – Jaguar Land Rover has developed a unique 3D-printed dog paw to help engineers assess the durability of future cars - with a little help from Yogi the Labrador and the new Land Rover Defender. The 'RoboYogi' paw was used to test the rear bumper's ability to withstand a dog's claws scraping the paint before and after dog walks, with results showing it can withstand more than a decade of use by dogs - highlighting how Jaguar and Land Rover vehicles are designed to meet the demands of owners' lifestyles.

"Anupan" a complete magazine on Habit, Diet and Yoga

Naturopathy treatment is the ancestors' gift to the present and future generations. It aims to heal all diseases by balancing out the energies of the body thereby healing the disease. Naturopath Dr. Mukesh Patel of Nihar Arogya Mandir in Ahmedabad has introduced 'Habit, Diet and Yoga' innovative System. He has written 6 books on the subject 'Habit, Diet And Yoga' Innovative therapy. He is an editor of 'Anupan' monthly magazine. He and his wife Deepika Patel has cured number of patients for more than 25 years by giving them innovative Naturopathic

Dr. Patel's articles in the magazine are well researched and carry a well-balanced scientific approach. 'Anupan' magazine is ever-ready companion as it acts as lubricant whenever friction arises in our life; as a bitter yet sincere adviser when we are frustrated due to sickness or any mental problem and as a practical solution-finder in your individual personal problems. Patients have been treated with the help of three miraculous words: Habit, Diet and Yoga and little amount of some herbs.

In his magazine 'Anupan' issue dated May 2018, he narrates that "If we learn to train our mind all our desires and wishes can be fulfilled. It is very important to take a break after achieving certain things. We cannot keep running after things madly. To enjoy that accomplishment the mind needs to take rest. And for understanding that meditation helps. Meditation means a 'No mind'".

Mahatma Gandhi emphasised on vegetarianism, which is inseparable from naturopathic way of treatment. He wrote about his experiments in his own publication "Indian opinion" under the title "Guide to health" and some articles on practicing yoga, working out regularly would help keep diseases at bay. Dr. Mukesh Patel believes that through diet therapy and herbal therapies one can heal its own body. Naturopathy treatment is devoid of injections, tablets, operations and diagnostic tests and is much effective particularly in the case of treating chronic ailments. Naturopathy treatment comprises treating patients using all the five elements of nature: fire, water, earth, space and air amidst sylvan surroundings.

Let us live in harmony with Mother nature. Our body is formed by five natural elements and is going to dissolve again into them when our soul departs from it. Is it not our responsibility to return this body to Mother Nature in as good a condition as we received it at birth. Naturopath Dr. Mukesh Patel advocates that "Prevention is better than cure".
